TUESDAY EVENING, JUNE 17.

THE GIRL OF THE PERIOD .- The girl of the period rather prides herself upon her gentlemanly appearance. She wears a round top hat, and raises it by way of acknowledging a bow; uses her parasol as a cane; thruits her gaily colored handkerchief in her "ulster" pocket, and flourishes it from time to time in a marked manner. She uses slatg, and characterizes her male friends as mashers and jolly fellows. This boldness toward her male friends is far more disa boldness toward her male friends is far more disa greeable to them than the wearing of hats suitable only for men, or garments cut in a style former ly used by gentlemen alone. Girls make a great mistake in thus forgetting the delicacy of their sex. How strange they do not know that mannishness or boldness is as offensive to young men, if they are true gentlemen, as it is to their mothers. The best young men will say when speaking of a young lady of this class: "Oh, yes; the's rather pretty, and pleasant enough to that with awhile, but I haven't a particle of respect for her, and would never think of marryspect for her, and would never think of marrying such a girl." When such young men are ing such a girl." When such young men are ready to marry they seek for modest, unobtrusive young ladies, who are busy with books and house duties, who dress in quiet taste, and are neither in gait nor manners inclined to mannishness. Girls like these do not need to do the courting, or dress loudly to attract the attention of the other sex. Think less of your nobby hats, sirls, and more of the heads beneath them. A girls, and more of the heads beneath them. simple, becoming dress is far more attractive than the costume you call stunning, or "gotten up regardless, &c." and alow, aweel voice more likely to win admiration than loud, resolute tones, perpetually employed in giving emphasis to slang.—Rich, Intelligencer.
